

CONCLUSION of the Ethics Committee of the Kazakh-American Free University

1.	Full name of the doctoral student	NESKE ALEXANDER
2.	Doctoral specialty (educational programme)	8D04101 – «Management»
3.	Period of doctoral studies	2022-2025
4.	Dissertation topic, date of approval	Managing sustainability-related complexity in supply chains: A capability-based managerial framework for organizational response Date of approval: No. 734-st of 28.10.2022
5.	Information on scientific advisers – full name (if applicable), place of work and position, academic degrees, citizenship	Domestic scientific adviser: Bordiyanu Ilona Vladimirovna – Doctor of Philosophy (PhD), Associate Professor of the Department of Business, Kazakh-American Free University (Ust-Kamenogorsk, Republic of Kazakhstan). Foreign scientific adviser: Hans-Christian Brauweiler – Doctor of Philosophy (PhD), Doctor of Sciences in Business, Management and Economics, Head of the Chair of Business Administration, Faculty of Business, Management and Economics, West Saxon University of Applied Sciences of Zwickau (Zwickau, Federal Republic of Germany).
6.	Object of the research	Object of the research. The object of the research is organizations in the supply chains of Germany and Kazakhstan as systems responding to sustainability requirements.
7.	Violations in the process of planning, evaluating, selecting and conducting scientific research	No violations were identified.
8.	Violations in the process of disseminating the results of scientific research	No violations were identified.
9.	How were the rights, safety and well-being of the research subjects protected (where objects of living nature and the habitat are involved)?	This study did not involve objects of living nature or the habitat. In the preparation of the dissertation research, artificial intelligence technologies were used to a permissible extent in accordance with the applicable regulatory requirements. The principal scientific results and conclusions of the research are the personal authorship of the doctoral student.

Chair of the Ethics Committee

Secretary of the Ethics Committee

Zh.E. Baikenov

Yu.A. Gavrilova